Editorial Note to Second Issue,

On behalf of the Board of Directors, I am pleased to announce the publication of the second issue of the Journal of Economics and Business Issues (JEBI). The promotion of this new journal would not have been possible without the significant contributions of the Editorial Board members. Thanks to all members.

This journal has been in production for about two years. It was a natural consequence of the expansion of academic research potential, especially in developing countries.

The Board decided to publish the journal as an open access online journal. In addition, it was decided to try to publish two issues a year, the autumn issue and the spring issue.

This journal aims to provide a common platform where they can share original research and latest developments in the fields of business finance, business accounting, business management, economics, public finance, fiscal policy, labor economics and econometrics that contribute to national and international social sciences. Literature. The journal aims to function as an international forum in editorial focus, with its determination to disseminate results that promise scientific excellence.

First of all, I would like to thank my associate editor, Ph-D Nuri Hacıevliyagil, who generously gave his time and expertise to realize this project. Then I would like to thank the proof editors of JEBI.
